Eduphoria: An International Multidisciplinary Magazine

About Magazine

Eduphoria is an International Multidisciplinary magazine especially educational magazine. Eduphoria is an international scholarly/ academic, peer-reviewed magazine for multiple age readers. Eduphoria is a forum for the exchange of the innovative ideas, data and information related to the multiple disciplines including science, social sciences, technology and engineering, psychological science, health, computer science, education, management, defence education, political science, development of education, and other disciplines for the welfare of education community. All age group writers, budding writers, budding artists, scholars, professional from different spheres, students, and institutional staff could contribute as reader or contributors. The magazine is appropriate for anyone who is interested and invested in the positive changes that are happening in education today including educators, educational leaders, education consultants, community-based organization staff, anyone interested in innovative ideas and practices, global education advocates, foundations, government agencies, businesses that support children's education. We also invite institutions to publish their events, programs reports, highlights, forthcoming programs news, student talks, cover stories etc. We resist political articles, articles on gender, caste, religion discrimination, content against the law of any country or related.

Aims and Objectives:

Eduphoria is an international open access magazine that provides unique, and stimulating information about the educational programs around the world. This magazine aims sharing innovation, case studies, stories, health & nutritional awareness, student voice and research experiences in the field of education and development. It a platform facilitating coordination and networking among individuals and institutes particularly among the youths and professionals. It is a platform to share ideas, innovative thoughts, and brainstorm on advancement of education and other disciplines.
